WESTON HIGH SCHOOL
WESTON, MASS.

FOREWORD

The blueprint of the school was essentially the blueprint of the year. The school building determined the size of the classes, how much could be crammed into one locker, what projects could be attempted in labs, and what kind of decorations were feasible for dances. Other unseen blueprints picked the student's classmates, cut his time into forty minute periods, and set up required programs of studies. Class activities, clubs, and sports also offered blueprints through which certain talents were developed. Students became better athletes, debaters, scholars, and linguists by following these blueprints. Because so many blueprints patterned the students' lives, blueprint was chosen as the theme for the book. This yearbook was intended to be a blueprint for remembering the year 1961-62.

DEDICATION

In looking for a dedicated follower of the many blueprints in Weston High School, the class thought of their class adviser and acting Vice Principal, Mr. Robert E. Marotta. To some he was best remembered sporting flamboyant hats and shrill whistles as the head cheerleader at the pep rally. Others knew him as the disciplinarian whose blueprint for justice was "firm but fair." Weekly progress reports over the P.A. at the end of F period which both threatened and entertained the students were his specialties. The new school itself owed Mr. Marotta a debt of gratitude. During the past summer he followed the architect with blueprint in hand to see that the right color desks were put in the right room and that other specifications were met. Because of his success at being several different people at one time, disciplinarian, teacher, coach and follower of blueprints, and because of the aid he has given to the class as its advisor, the class has dedicated this yearbook to Mr. Marotta in the hope that he will continue in Weston High the service which he has shown to the class of '62.'

"I want you to really YELL tonight."

EXCELLENCE IN SECONDARY EDUCATION

On December 2, the new school became the scene and the stage for its own official christening into the anxious arms of the Weston School System. The footsteps and pedantic voices of many guests, prominent in the field of education, filled the corridors and rooms of the building. There was a general open-house for the benefit of those townspeople who wished to see what the increase in their tax rate had achieved. Praise for thrift and exclamations of awe were both seen and heard. Panels composed of Weston High teachers and guests discussed the achievements and the goals of subjects from History to Mathematics.

THE UNCOMPLETED BUILDING

A devastated vista of destroyed earth, a scar upon the once pleasant country side, a jungle of ripped-up trees, that was the place. Monolithic piles of brick upon brick, stacks of lumber glaring white in the sun, sallow-colored packages resting in the brown earth, those were the materials. From this sordid bed of confusion rose the unfinished shell of Weston High School. The shell was gray, cavernous, echoing, peopleless. It lacked the warmth and sounds that only students could create.

THE COMPLETED BUILDING

The finished product was a cheerful but chilly chamber in which to learn. Amid the sound of new buzzers the students slid from class to class and from orange chair to green until the hollow corridors echoed with the scrapings of scuffing shoes hurrying so as not to incur the stern looks and the confusion of arriving late to class. The inanimate objects of the glass, steel, and brick menagerie became the structural blueprint which encased the students' lives and gave a mere building life.

ADMINISTRATION Mr. Donald Hale, Vice Principal; Dr. Anthony Brackett, Superintendent; Mr. Willard Smith, Principal.

ADMINISTRATION

Congratulations went to our administrative troika who dedicated their time and nervous systems to our education, and to Mr. Gleason, the Accordion Plan's undercover agent. Mr. Proctor deserved commendation for his excellent physical fitness program.

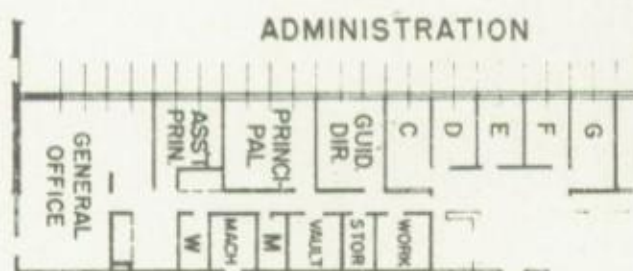

Mr. John Proctor, Athletic Director.

Mr. Walter Gleason, Accordion Plan Director.

GUIDANCE

With knives in their teeth, the guidance department stood prepared to advise tortured youths. The underclassmen found consolation under the often soothing hand of Mrs. Abbott. The guidance of the trying Junior and Senior years fell upon Mr. Carini and Mr. Cummings whose advice was invaluable. The tedious secretarial work was left to the undaunted Mrs. Sinclair.

Mr. Charles Cummings, Guidance Director.

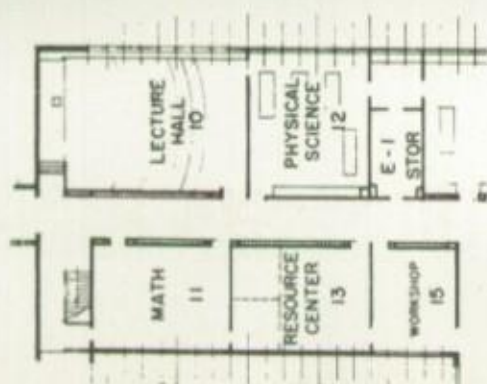

GUIDANCE Mrs. Dorothy Abbott, Mr. Robert Carini.

Mrs. Elaine Sinclair, Guidance Director Secretary.

FACUL

Within the blueprint of the school structure, the faculty members created a learning atmosphere by giving of their knowledge, experience, and time. This learning process continued after school in extra-curricular activities. Students and teachers worked cooperatively in play productions, clubs, musical programs, and publications. Participating in these activities helped each student to develop his own character blueprint.

MATHEMATICS STAFF:
Mr. Kellett, Miss Holt, Miss
Specht, Mrs. Ellsworth.

MATHEMATICS

In spite of a teacher's impulsive tendency to beat metal desks with night-sticks and although the amount of math actually absorbed was held in doubt by some observers, Weston's Math Department succeeded in imparting mathematical wisdom to the students. In addition to overseeing the ordinary scholastic endeavors of math students, the department sponsored the successful interscholastic Math Team which was second in the seven-team league. The Math Club sponsored the exciting intra-mural math contest attended by hordes of enthusiastic students.

PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY

Amid the talk of Newton's Laws, Avagadro's principle, energy, valences and work, the students' minds were kept in the perpetual motion of attempting to understand and assimilate the vast theories of chemistry and physics. The brilliant, gleaming, and often frightening array of lab equipment facilitated the task of understanding and helped to make and unmake future scientists. Regardless of the double lab periods and the endless reading and re-reading of scientific passages, the students acquired or rather dug out the knowledge and fascination of the mysteries of science.

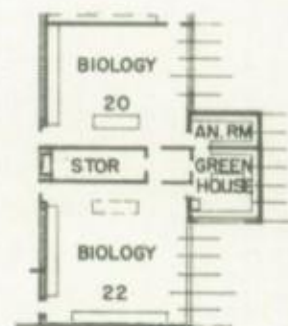

Physics and Science Staff: Mrs. Gorden, Mr. Marsden, Miss Day.

BIOLOGY STAFF: Miss Hardy and Mr. Keene.

BIOLOGY

There was no other part of Weston High that was quite as "live" as the biology section. Snakes, guinea pigs, hybiscus plants, geraniums, and in the mist of them all Mr. Keene, made an atmosphere of living biology, which was permeated with the odor of formaldehyde and pickled crickets. Who will forget the discovery of the supraesophageal ganglion, or the mounting of the crayfish and its minute components, or the first incision into the earthworm or the dogfish? The outdoor labs and the annual morning bird walk also added a living touch.

Hold still, dogfish!

SCIENCE CLUBS

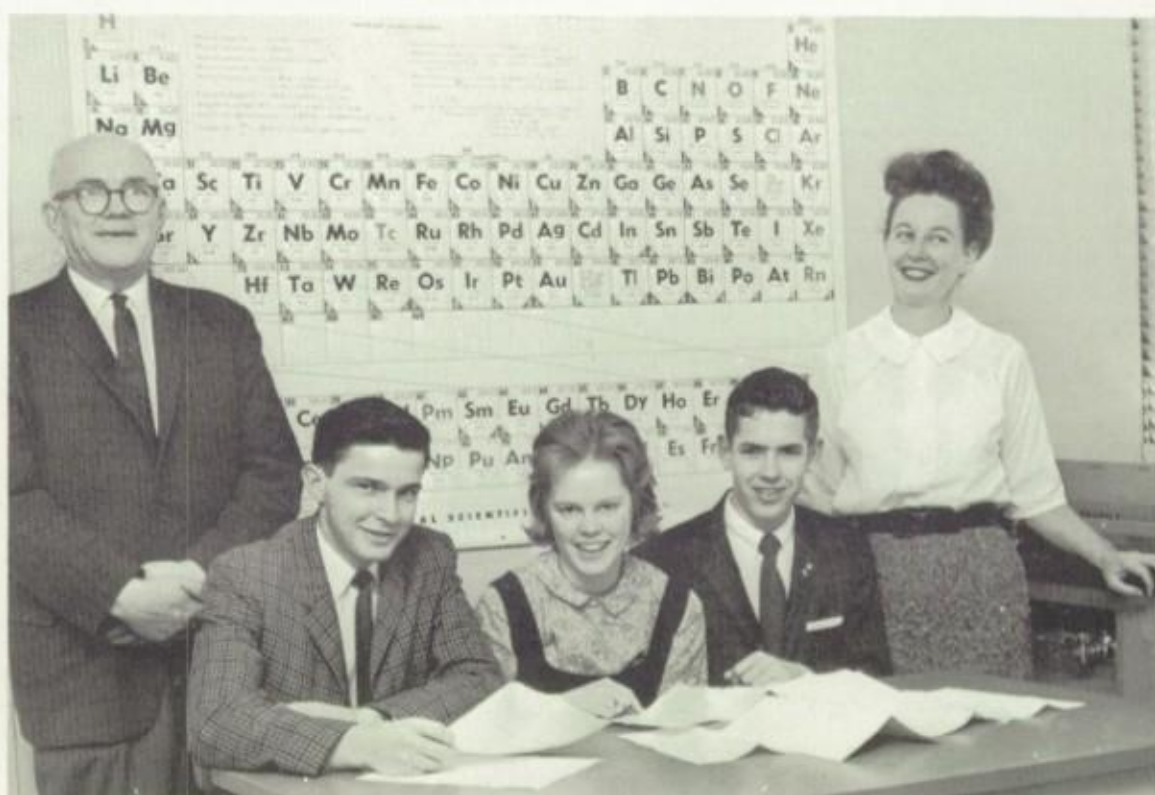

In the anxious hands of the Biology Club, trout found new safety as the chief victims of the club's conservation attempts. The club also sponsored informative field trips involving crow-bar skulls, walks in the rain, and damp hours in sub-tropical greenhouses. The Science Club was the promoter of scientific excitement in Weston High and through the Science Night students found a chance to display their science work to parents and interested townspeople. The science-crammed heads of the Science Team led Weston to victories over teams from other schools.

Mrs. Zamprogno, Head of Language Department.

French Class was a confused world of doing vocabulary lists and mysterious past anterior verbs. "Les professeurs" taught French, planned entertaining programs for the French Club, and promoted increased interest in the Weston-Rombas Affiliation and in other student exchange programs. Cracking down on note passers, the department ran an efficient lab which the students used twice a week ostensibly to improve their pronunciation.

LATIN AND RUSSIAN

Would be Latinists often found it difficult to memorize declensions and conjugations and to translate the verbal gymnastics of Cicero and not difficult to enjoy Virgil's poetry or understand "Winnie Ille Pooh." Students often marveled that the basis of many languages was buried under the onus of Latin grammar. Once the Russian student had mastered the idiosyncracies of the Russian alphabet and the pronunciation of its letters, he was prepared to wrestle with "Bela."

Mr. Marotta, Russian teacher.

Mrs. Fernald, Latin Teacher.

Mrs. Czarnowski, permanent substitute.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

The purpose of fostering international understanding was best exhibited by the six foreign exchange students, for they brought the warm spirit of their countries to Weston High. They also contributed their individual talents and became important members of their class. Josyanne Braas when not tutoring French students and trying American sports, Fernando Rangel, and Sabine Podolsky through their friendship, became well respected members of the school.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE STUDENTS: Josyanne Braas, Fernando Rangel, Guillermina Navarro, Lilia Navarro, Jon Sanderud, Sabine Podolsky.

Miss Claire McDonough, Head of English Department.

ENGLISH STAFF Mr. Robert Walker, Mr. Robert Clawson, Mr. Charles Hatch, Mr. Paul Nichols.

ENGLISH

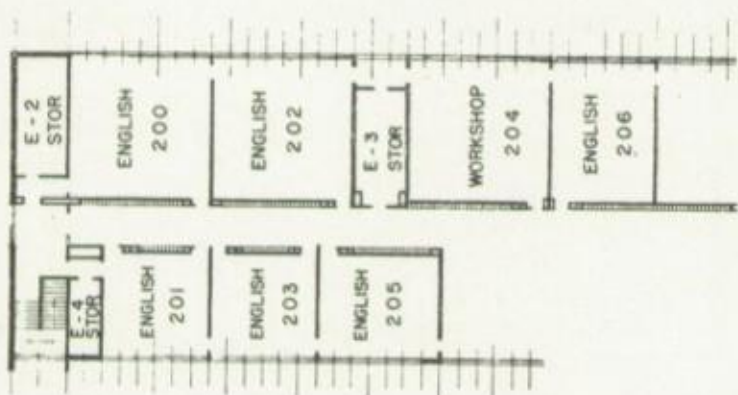

The aim of the English Department this year as in the past has been to make cultured pearls from grains of sand. This noble and often frustrated aim was accomplished not only by classroom hysteria but also by the extracurricular clubs and activities within the department. Such activities as the Folio, which was our first non-profit organization, and the Smoke Signal, most noted for editorial prowess, stimulated the students' interest and, it seemed, their apathy.

SMOKE SIGNAL ROW 1: J. Kingery, S. Morgan, B. Boden, B. Arnold, C. Shneider, Miss Deisher, Advisor. ROW 2: J. Sullivan, H. DeRusha, K. Rider, S. Murphy, J. O'Toole, M. Strong, R. Leiser, L. Townsend, R. Weaver, B. Wareham, C. Donaldson.

FOLIO STAFF ROW 1: S. Jones, Mr. Walker, Advisor, L. Stantial, N. Angelo. ROW 2: J. Heidt, C. Ashbrook, M. Martell, J. Ogilvie, K. Downing.

READING

Students who took the reading course under Miss Callahan struggled with vocabulary words and raced the sliding shutter to the bottom of the page. All these techniques were useless unless the students were determined to read faster and to increase their comprehension at the same time.

ENGLISH STAFF Miss Dorothy Deisher, Mr. John Zorn.

Miss Gertrude Callahan, Reading Instructor.

SPEECH CLUBS

The dulcet tones of the Announcers' Club cut short the morning conversation and signaled the beginning of a period and another day with words of wisdom and windy announcements. The Technicians' Club manipulated the vast confusion of the P.A. system. The Debating Club, also under the paternal hand of Mr. Zorn, provided a rostrum for those voluble and argumentative students who wished to score points for their forensic achievements.

DRAMATICS

When Madwomen were in flower.

The newly created Drama Club plunged successfully into its first season at Weston High with the production of Shaw's "Arms and the Man," followed by Girandoux's "The Madwoman of Chaillot." Placid and everyday students were transformed into be-mustached soldiers, Bulgarian noble women, shrill-voiced mothers, mad women, rag pickers and other assorted vagrants. Perhaps even more amazing than the transition of students to interesting characters were the professional performances which astounded the audiences and led to the after-play egotism of the actors.

Our ever planning but slow acting Student Council worked on tailoring past rules to present conditions by warming up the monitor system. They also acted as guides for the many visiting dignitaries. Based on scholarship, leadership, and character, membership in the National Honor Society was the highest recognition that could be bestowed upon grade-grubbing students by Weston High.

SOCIAL STUDIES STAFF Mrs. Alice Baum, Miss Cora Coggins, Mr. Robert Marotta, Mr. Leo Cronan.

Mr. Norman Smith, Head of Social Studies Department.

SOCIAL STUDIES

In the Social Studies Department, the Modern Problems course, a new threat to senior freedom, made use of joint lectures and the interchanging of teachers to better acquaint the students with the problems of our present day world, which were best summed up in a bomb. The Accordion Plan put the squeeze on the two combined Junior English and History courses. The Discussion Club took an active part in increasing the scope of the students' understanding of modern affairs by the use of heated discussions at overly populated meetings.

DISCUSSION CLUB ROW 1: Mr. Cummings, Advisor, A. Ford, S. Derby, J. Braas, C. Dippolito, P. Storm, M. Martell, I. Rose, H. Antell. ROW 2: C. Howes, N. Long, D. De-Napoli, F. Rangel, J. Petrick, C. Bothwell, R. Harding, M.

ART SERVICE S. Hulsman, Miss Olliff, Advisor, M. Martell, D. Jenkins, J. Benger.

ART

This year's Art Service Club under the direction of Miss Olliff, woman with the camera, aided the school and the community by rendering its artistic talents to numerous projects such as making posters, decorating for the U.N. Dinner, and adorning the display cases. Another organization of temperamental artists was the Palette and Brush Club which was composed of students who had received recognition for both their art work and service.

LIBRARY

During the first few months of school, Mrs. Mulford was our combination card catalogue and reference library mainly because there was no card catalogue or books. One of the main attractions of the new library was the combination of upholstered chairs and the magazine rack. With the arrival of the books, a horde of library assistants were recruited, and the students were forced to settle down to more serious studies by the use of the new pass system.

HOME ECONOMICS

The greatest boon to the male sex was the Home Economics Department at Weston High School where the otherwise unintelligent female learned how to cook a meal, set a table, and to sew a fine seam. A major contributor to this education was the Future Homemakers of America Club, under the direction of Mrs. Raymond, who imparted womanly hints to the girls through their club activities.

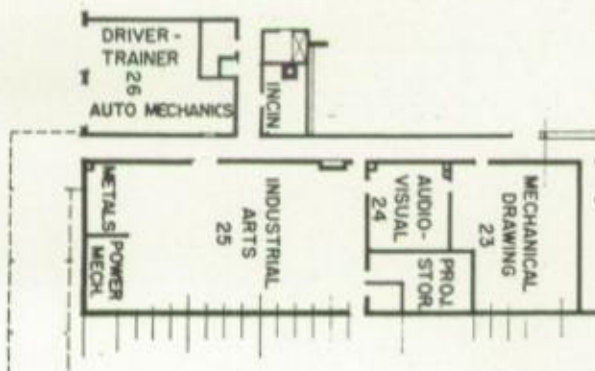

Mrs. Ruth Raymond, Home Economics.

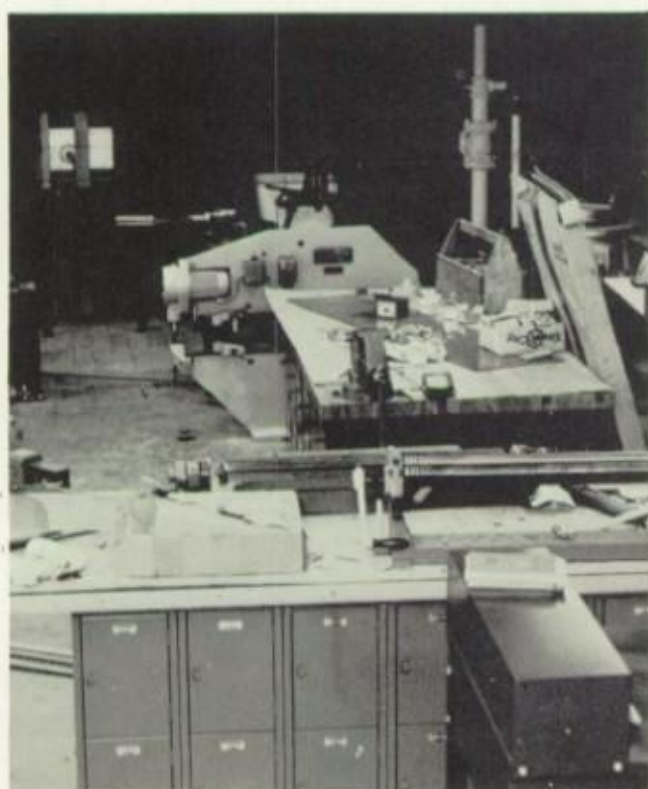

Mrs. Thelma Hoyle, Business.

BUSINESS

From the Business Department carefully surveyed by Mrs. Hoyle, came many aids and many threats to male supremacy in the business world. Nowhere was this competence more obvious than in the Future Business Leaders of America Club, which gathered together those interested in the business world for club activities and for doing clerical work that was vital to the operation of the school.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS Mr. Donald Hale, Mr. Donald Gearan.

What's wrong in this picture?

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

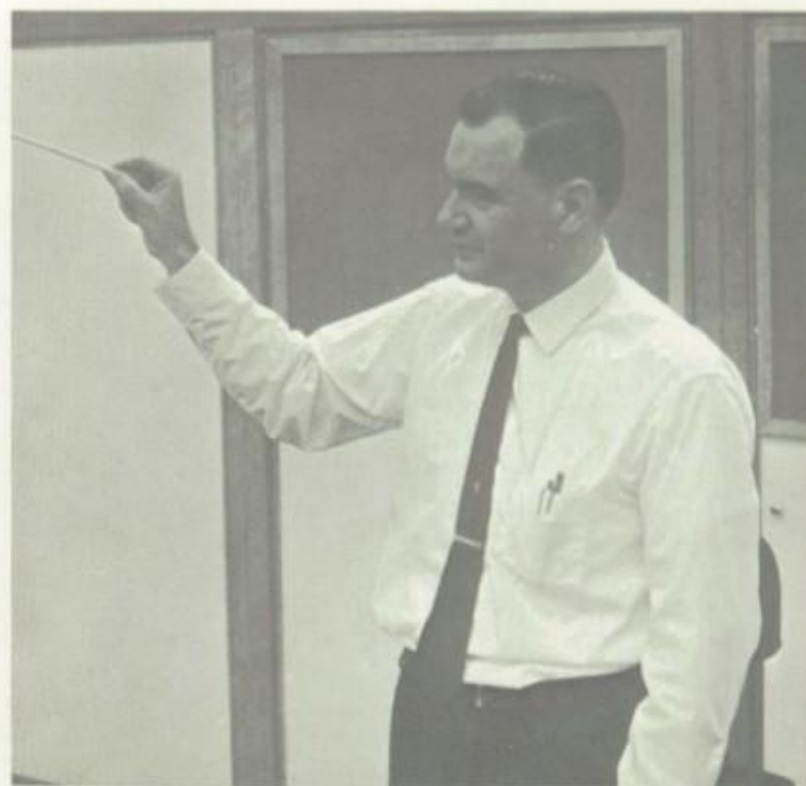

Amid whirling motors, resounding hammers, smashed thumbs, unpacked packages, unassembled machines, and the scratchings of soft pencils and T squares, Mr. Gearan and Mr. Hale reigned supreme. The Industrial Arts Department taught the student to think with his hands as well as with his mind by providing useful instruction in the arts of carpentry, machine operation, and mechanical drawing.

BAND

Matching the heroics of the football team with fortitude, perserverance and equal practice time, the high school band played its part in exciting the crowd and cheering on the team. Such familiar tunes of victory as Maroon and Gray, Hey Look Me Over and Bill Bailey pierced the cold air. The Majorettes, warmed by their school spirit and little else, twirled before an enthusiastic crowd. Other accomplishments of the band were exhibited at the Christmas assembly and the Spring Concert directed by Mr. Corley.

MUSIC

Never has the adage, "Music hath the charm to sooth wild beasts," been more evident than at the various assemblies and concerts where the orchestra has charmed Weston High students. Another favorite of the Muses are the choirs which appear with the orchestra in both the Christmas and Spring Concerts. The choirs sung without sheet music and pitch pipe which required a great deal of strenuous practice and conducting. The orchestra brought pleasure to not only Weston but also to other towns in the form of exchange concerts.

OFFICE

Signing passes, determining the validity of absence notes, cajoling indignant parents, contending with the switchboard, distributing forgotten lunches and gym equipment, and bickering over late bus passes, were some of the jobs which our methodical secretaries, Mrs. Harding and Miss Jenney, performed from nine to five behind the rampart of the office counter.

CAFETERIA WORKERS AND CUSTODIANS

Perhaps the most controversial subject of the student's day was the cafeteria menu prepared behind folding yellow doors. In rare reflective moments the students would admit that the cooks deserved more praise than they were given. With whirling machines, mops, brooms, and a great deal of patience the Mr. Cleans of Weston High cleaned the whole school and everything that was in it!

Weston High students twisted, have-ed and fox trotted their way through a social movement stretching from the Canteen, a study in underclassmen behavior, to the Senior Sociables for those who liked to dance in sardine-can quarters. The social activity which the students managed to work into the blueprint of their high school lives was indeed furious, consuming more time than perhaps their studies.

SPRING FORMAL 1961

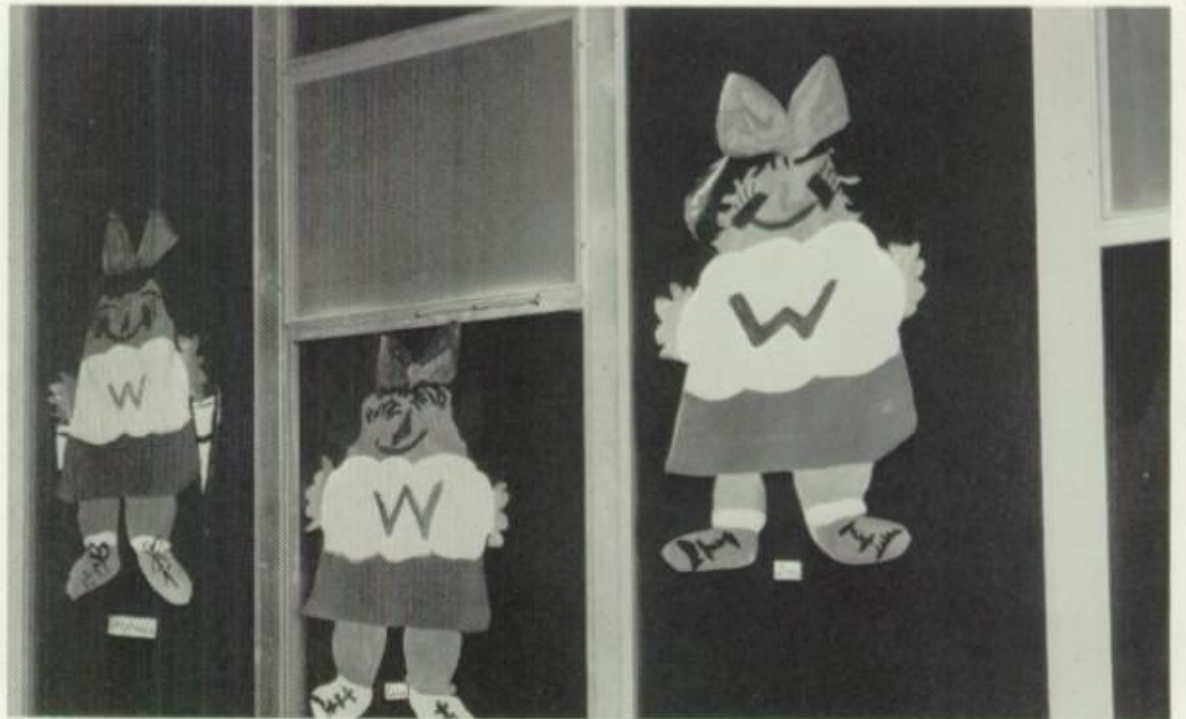

The Junior Prom, Sayonara, proved many things, mainly, that contrary to the opinion of many well-informed cynics, the class of 1962 could be united to do something constructive and that water plus wood equals warp. Perhaps the most lasting memories of the prom will be the frantic study hall periods spent in the construction of the decorations and the laughter and depression when something went right and when something went wrong. But all seemed worthwhile when the triumphant class of '62 transformed from paint bespattered gargoyles to ladies and gentlemen and danced away the evening amidst 'ahs' of praise.

FALL SOCIAL EVENTS

Football was the catalyst for most of the social events of the fall. People assembled before the game for the pep rally, socialized during the game, and congratulated each other after the game. Over seven hundred jammed the first night rally in Weston's history. If the enthusiasm of that night could have won the Wayland game, Weston would have. The success of the Cheerleaders' Dance could be attributed to the fact that the girls asked the boys. The local talent of the Vibratones was the highlight of the Sophomore Dance. The Saturday night Canteens afforded excellent escape from what could have been duller Saturday nights.

WINTER SOCIAL EVENTS

The fashionable Senior Sociables, when boys wore tuxedos and the girls wore formals, but danced in stocking feet, was the highlight of the winter social season. Twisting and ping pong playing were ways in which the students warmed themselves at winter Canteens. For the more mentally athletic there was chess. Students also socialized before classes, between classes, after classes, and sometimes even during classes.

The underclasses could be distinguished from each other by such interpreted blueprints as the locker and homeroom areas, the assembly seating chart, and the class cards. Freshmen gathered in the math and science wing, sat in the back seats during assemblies, and carried elementary courses. The sophomores had the most accordionized schedule, which kept them wondering where the next class would be. They shared the second floor lockers and homerooms with the juniors. The class cards of the juniors were filled with courses required by their prospective colleges and vocations. All the underclassmen were distinguished by the development of their growing ideas and talents which went far beyond their program of studies and their physical position in the school.

Freshmen were frightened by the sophomores, accepted with reservation by the juniors, ignored by the seniors, and loved by themselves. For the first time in their blissful lives they were exposed to the adult world and were allowed to pass within the mystifying portals of Weston High. They soon discovered that there was nothing magical about being buried under mounds of books.

HOMEROOM 19 ROW 1: P. England, H. MacKintosh, T. Holtby, C. Johnson, M. Lindsley, S. Hosterman, D. Lee, M. McDonald. ROW 2: J. Leone, J. Howes, R. Martell, D. Leach, G. MacLeod, R. Jenkins, A. Karas, R. Lord, R. Lamantea, G. Hubbard, R. Kiely, R. McRae.

Most freshmen had to work their way around the world in 180 days with Mr. Marotta, transport themselves to mythical English class, and solve simultaneous equations in Algebra. Twice a week they attended orientation sessions where they were indoctrinated in how to win friends, influence people, and make good grades. Survival of this year brought them one step closer to their goal, maturity.

A sophomore could be described as one who loved la facile vie and disliked homework, report cards, and Monday mornings. They patiently fathomed geometric theorems, logically proved congruent and isosceles triangles, and squinted into microscopes to view their fascinating ancestors. Biologists whose hands reeked perpetually with formaldehyde could sympathize with Lady Macbeth.

HOMEROOM 209 ROW 1: J. Law, J. MacMillan, M. Kuipers, S. Locke, I. MacLeod, J. Leone. ROW 2: J. Livingston, R. Leiser, R. Kurkjian, J. Leonhardt, M. Lee. ROW 3: Mr. Marotta, R. Jennett, ROW 3: L. O'Connell, J. Robbins, E. Prouty, B. Schaible, Mrs. Fernald. ROW 4: L. Pexton, J. Rickards, J. Sabeau, C. Ormsby, P. Secord, B. Moore, E. Rizzo.

The extent of the sophomore social activities was the football dance, which boldly introduced the "twist" and the "Hava." They also were noted for their genuine school spirit exhibited at all the sports events. Sophomores sometimes suffered from being the "middle child." The newness of high school was gone but they were still far from the top of the totem pole.

HOMEROOM 214 ROW 1: P. Reed, N. Steele, A. Tompkins, C. Toner, R. Weaver, G. White, R. Strong. ROW 2: C. Shneider, E. Woodward, B. Wareham, L. Townsend, G. Taylor, J. Valentine, S.

HOMEROOM 202 ROW 1: D. Griffith, A. Ford, E. Fitzgerald, K. Flint, R. Duffy, B. Gowell, P. Herring, J. Eaton. ROW 2: S. Gross, G. Grinnell, C. Gibson, J. Helgeson, L. Heywood, K. FitzSimons, B.

Gates, Mr. Walker. ROW 3: R. Gray, B. Everett, T. Hetherington, M. Holtby, K. French, B. Gibson, D. Evans, D. Fabrizio. ROW 4: C. Graves, J. Heidt, W. French, D. Greenlie, R. Harlow, N. Fraser, D. Holmes, D. Harding, K. Downing.

Junior year was a year of mixed emotions, nausea in Chemistry Lab., Huckleberry Hound in Algebra 2, Presidents of the United States, and accordion plans with Mr. Hatch's ham acting. The class was noted for its assortment of egg-heads who could usually be found casually browsing through ivy-league catalogues and seeing Mr. Carini for test results — S.A.T's and National Merit Exams, of course!

HOMEROOM 201 ROW 1: J. Jones, K. Lingley, S. Matz, W. LaTucky, C. McFarlin, J. Judge. ROW 2: Mr. Nichols, R. Lilly, R. Laughner, V. MacDonald, G. Hubbard, B. Miller, K. McMullin. ROW 3: S. Mathews, D. MacLeod, W. Lee, W. Leiser, R. McKenzie, M. Kilgore.

HOMEROOM 203 ROW 1: M. Neill, J. Richardson, E. Mosher, M. Myers, C. Ray, I. Rose. ROW 2: D. Price, J. Miller, P. Piper, S. Morgan, Miss Deisher. ROW 3: J. Petrick, L. Saunders, P. Palmgren, J. Ogilvie, B. Russell, L. Molan. ROW 4: C. Packard, B. Pinel, T. Nims, S. O'Brien, G. Reilly.

During the last month the magic word was "career." Everyone tried to think of a suitable one for himself. The first time the juniors got socially organized was for the spectacular Junior Promenade. Keeping up with the seniors, so that they would be ready to take their seats in the auditorium on Class Day, was the junior class' main objective. Worthy or not, they were the new occupants.

HOMEROOM 205 ROW 1: G. Navarro, A. Surette, S. Vogt, L. Stantial, C. Sloan, C. Sooy, D. Winsor. ROW 2: M. Strong, M. Tornabene, J. Tenneson, J. Tyler, S. Wilkes, H. Toppan, J. Van-
Nostrand, N. Woodland, K. Stevens. ROW 3: R. Underhill, J. Stubbs, R. Trowbridge, B. Scott, G. Teleki, C. Schuerhoff, L. Ulm, Mr. Cronan. ROW 4: K. Walker, E. Shekleton, J. Viles, P. Vonnegut, S. Woodworth.

No one would have thought that the Senior Class would emerge as splendidly as it did from the chrysalis stage of the ninth, tenth and eleventh grade. In such a class of individuals it was easy to get opinions, difficult to get agreements, and almost impossible to get volunteers. Although the individuality of the class sometimes made organization frustrating, the contributions made to the school by individuals will be remembered as the outstanding characteristic of the class. In times of need the class did work together and remained undefeated for the last three field days. They left the blueprint of their achievements as a challenge to future classes.

Courts, diamonds, tracks, and gridirons formed the blueprint which shaped the player's actions and goals in sports. In trying to win and to be a good sport at the same time, the player experienced glory, esteem, hard-felt satisfaction, defeat, and frustration, emotions which were shared by spectators as well. Exultation amid cheers of the crowd and the icy stab of silence were all part of the game. Whether the player scored or received a mouthful of mud, he had at least learned to endure.

FOOTBALL

The Wildcats scratched out a 7—2 record, which was the highest record in a decade and one of the best in Weston's history. For fans and players alike the season was an exciting one. Fur began to fly early in the year when Weston held Lynnfield to their lowest league score. Next the team crawled over a powerful Westwood line. In the Thanksgiving game with Wayland, the Wildcats won everything but the turkey. Reasons for the teams success were great individual play, team effort and spirit, and Coach Harris's shrewd tactics. Lowcuts were also helpful.

CROSS-COUNTRY

Coached by Mr. Marotta, the cross-country team finished the season with a winning 4—3—1 record. Among the year's accomplishments were perfect scores of 15 in two meets, a respectable showing at the Massachusetts State Championship Meet, and a second place in a triangular meet with Newton North and South. As the harriers rounded the first turn, they never forgot to shout their magic word, "Boohah!"

FIELD HOCKEY

Often the moon rose over the hockey field in the fall and shone on frozen figures scurrying from "late hockey practice." Because there was only one returning veteran, Darleen DeNapoli, hours of practice were necessary to strengthen the inexperienced team. Following Miss Butera's coaching to "Be Aggressive," the varsity emerged with a 6—2—2 record. Credit goes to the forward line led by high scorers, Michèle Tornabene and Pam Herring, and the goalie, Lois Smith. Miss Butera and the co-captains left the farewell party early for showers.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

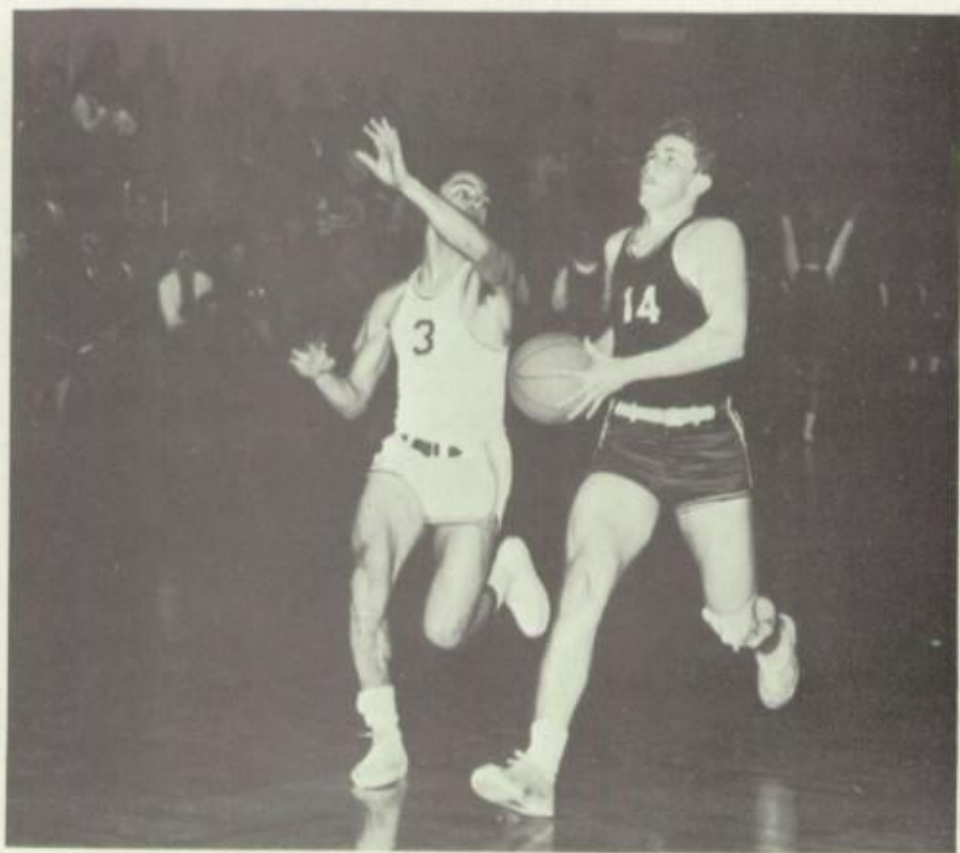

The littlest wildcat eludes the Warriors.

With the all-round talents of co-captains Art King and Bud Foster and the defensive strength of the senior players, this year's basketball team gave Weston an exceptional season's record of 15-2. Two back-to-back, three-point losses to Westwood and Lynnfield deprived them of the Dual Country League Championship. The greatest reward of the season was two sweet victories over their arch-rival, Wayland. In the opening round of the Tech Tourney, Weston lost to Falmouth 49-47 in the last eight seconds of play.

CHEERLEADING

The cheerleaders' life, although exciting during games, was a tedious one behind scenes. After late spring tryouts, the cheerleaders began practicing their cheers in June and continued through the summer. By the fall they were eager to cheer at the first football game despite the eighty-degree heat. Their enthusiasm, out done only by that of Mrs. Czarnowski, their advisor, never waned and burst anew during the basketball season. They somehow found time to put on a food sale and two successful Twirp dances.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The varsity basketball team finished the season with a 6-3-1 record. A new lineup started almost every game because of absences due to flu and off-the-court injuries. After suffering two early defeats, the plays began to click, and any combination proved successful. The games were exciting to the spectators, members of the team and their mothers, since often the team came from behind to win. Most valuable players were co-captains Ellen Rayner and Ann Molan. The most esteemed coach was Miss Butera. The JV team turned in an undefeated record for the season, and will send up good "material" for next year's varsity

HOCKEY

For the first time since the roaring 20's Weston played interscholastic hockey. Supervised by Mr. Roche, the all star team lost a close battle with Rivers, 2-1. In intramural hockey Peter Pollock's team skated into first place followed by the teams of Gay Teleki, Bob Aker, and Russ Hills.

YEARBOOK STAFF

The staff was a heterogeneous group of frustrated artists and over-worked minions. They courageously attempted to turn hectic afternoons and Saturday morning work periods into effective sessions for revamping 3r's, sorting pictures, and facing up to deadlines. A sense of accomplishment, however, was felt by the staff when the 3r's were mailed and the proofs returned. The most amazing aspect of the book was that students realized that they had the stamina and the patience to accept the responsibilities of producing a yearbook. Often we thought that this could never be done, but we did it!
